

Supply Chain Management

Ohio is a hub of supply chain activity, and this program provides excellent opportunity for students wanting to stay close to home or travel the world. It's way more than shipping.

Local & Global Opportunities

This truly global field gives students flexibility in where they work, from around the corner to around the world. How's your French? What about Mandarin?

More Than Shipping Containers

Most students think of cargo ships, but supply chain stretches from smartphone manufacturing to buying fabric for luxury fashion designers.

Popular Class Sourcing & Operations

Something as simple as a razor may be sourced from a dozen different countries. This course shows you why, how, and gives you the knowledge to start yourself.

Favorite Thing?

"Applying classroom learning to a real, "close to home" business example. It felt like something I would genuinely do in a Supply Chain role someday."
